Mr. M. P. Traut, of Casa Grande, is visiting Chicago on mining business.

Mr. Traut is interested in some very promising mining claims in Pinal county.

The third biennial session of the Grand Legion of Colorado, Select Knights, A. O. U. W., will convene in Boulder, Colorado, on Tuesday, October 9th, at 2 o'clock p. m.

Mr. Dan C. Stevens, of Florence, is announced for Treasurer of Pinal county.

The Citizen says Mr. Stevens is an A. I. citizen, well and favorably known to the good people of his county and will undoubtedly be the next treasurer.

Sheriff Fryer visited Pinal and Silver King last week and reports everything satisfactory at that end of the line for his re-election. It now looks as though Mr. Fryer will have an unexpectedly large majority when the votes are counted upon the evening of election day.

Mr. C. W. Culver, of Pinal, is announced as a candidate for Supervisor of Pinal county at the coming election.

Mr. Culver is not only well known to nearly all the voters of this county, but he possesses all the necessary qualifications for the position he seeks.

Mr. Stillman is a brother of Mrs. I. T. Whittemore, and for the present his watch repairing bench will occupy a room in Rev. Mr. Whittemore's residence.

It is learned that Mrs. Richard Trevathan, of Silver King, recently gave birth to a child that weighed just one pound at its birth. It was too small and weak to take its food in the natural way and was consequently fed with a spoon. It is apparently thriving and promises to grow strong.

Mr. O. D. Gibbs, of Chicago, Illinois, has become associated with Maj. G. W. Ingalls, of Phoenix, in the real estate loan and insurance business.

Mr. Gibbs was formerly the president of the Chicago Chamber of Commerce, and is a gentleman of large business experience.

There was born, says the Tucson Citizen, on the night of the 19th inst., a bouncing fine looking daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Dan C. Stevens of Florence. This is a gratification baby as the first male her brother on the earth's great stage while the republicans were ratiating with song and story the work of the convention on the day previous.

Mr. Jere Fryer is again before the citizens of Pinal county for their suffrages for sheriff. And the Citizen very rightly says this office he at present holds and will beyond doubt be re-elected. His record is that of a good officer, bold and fearless in the discharge of his duties, and Pinal county will do herself proud by giving him what he deserves, another term.

Mrs. J. Peyton's lodging house and restaurant has been completely refitted and refurbished. The dining room and kitchen, under her personal superintendence, are models of neatness and the tables are provided with the best market affords. If you wish a clean bed and good meal call at this quiet and home-like place.

Identified at Last.

The man who was knocked off the bank at Pinal recently, and who died from injuries received, was Ben. Jernegan, lately of Shakerston, New Mexico. He was well known to the undersigned and just a few days before his death he passed through Florence on route to De Noen with a young man named Sherman, hunting work. He came in by way of Quijota and remained a day or so in Florence. His great fault was excessive drink. New Mexico papers will please copy. W. H. GIFFIN.

[The above refers to the party killed in Pinal by being pushed down a steep embankment on the 5th of this month. He was picked up in an unconscious condition and placed in a cabin near by. During the following night he was removed—being himself helplessly paralyzed—to the bed of the creek, where he was found and cared for until he died. An autopsy showed a fracture of the skull on the right side of the head, from the effects of which death was undoubtedly produced. Mr. Griffin states that the deceased was formerly a school teacher and belonged to a good family. Being crossed in love about twelve years ago, he took to drink and was a slave to the cup.—E.D.S. ENTERPRISE.]

Send Your Specimens.

Maj. G. W. Ingalls, superintendent of the mineral Department of the Arizona Industrial Exposition Association, at Phoenix, will be pleased to receive from nine owners of all portions of the Territory, specimens of ore for exhibition. After the fair is closed those who desire may leave their samples in the permanent exhibition building. In sending specimens also give a full description of the mine from which they are taken, setting forth the character of the ore, formation, development work, average assays, etc., which will be recorded in a large book that will be open for the inspection of visitors. An effort will be made to advertise the mining resources of the Territory by this means, as widely as possible and there can be no doubt that great ultimate good will result to the miners from their exhibits. It is hoped Pinal county mines will be creditably represented. The fair begins on October 15th and closes on the 20th.

The Florence Brass Band.

The young men of Florence have determined to have a brass band and a few days ago they organized for that purpose and have ordered a set of instruments. An instructor has also been secured and it will not be long before the evening air will waft the musical "toot—toot—toot" the length and breadth of the town.

The following are the members of the band, Mr. W. Wood, Porter being the president and Mr. F. B. Maldonado, secretary. W. Wood, Porter, H. V. Jackson, F. B. Maldonado, H. E. McMurray, Antonio Gonzalez, Ernest Lohman, Wm. McCreary, E. P. Drew, A. J. Jennings and G. O. Eaton.

Messrs. Henry E. Kemp & Co., the Phoenix dealers in wagons, buggies and agricultural implements of every character, have recently received a big stock of goods to meet the fall and winter demand. They receive their shipments direct from the large eastern factories in carload lots and can therefore give the purchaser better rates than the small dealers. They will cheerfully give their distant patrons any and all information as to quality and price of goods by mail, and they will promptly fill all orders with scrupulous fidelity.

A man by the name of Johnson was shot and killed by five drunken Indians last Wednesday on Cook's ranch, some three miles above Dudleyville. One of the chiefs on the river says he will give the names of the Indians implicated. Johnson came to the San Pedro last spring and rented a ranch, put in a crop of corn, potatoes, etc., and by hard work, assisted by one of his small boys, one of the best crops on the San Pedro was the result.

While the temperature has not been excessively high during the past week, a strong east wind has prevailed and at the present writing the supply seems to hold out well. If a storm does not follow all this windy demonstration the usual order of meteorological things will not prevail, although an effort will be made to advance for even a slight rainfall.

The various candidates for office are arranging to meet in the Court House to-night and speak their little pieces before the public. Fireworks and other flaming attractions are hinted at and there will likely be a great lurrach, which everybody will attend.

Alaska Gold Fields.

A special from Ottawa, Ont., says a matter which may strongly tend to strengthen the already strained relations between the Dominion and the United States, has presented itself in connection with the limits of jurisdiction at points adjacent to the boundary line between Alaska and British Columbia. The result of a recent investigation was reported to the government here. The valuable gold fields, it is claimed, which have been discovered and which are now being worked on the Yukon river, are in British and not in United States territory, as has all along been supposed. These gold fields, it is represented, will be of great value, and as American officers in Alaska dispute the claim that the deposits are in British territory, a conflict between the miners, who believe they are working in United States territory, and the British authorities, who assert their jurisdiction, is feared. The Provincial Government of British Columbia is now issuing mining permits, and in the absence of any definite international boundary line, it cannot but follow that in many instances they are granted without a knowledge as to whether they are in British or United States territory. It is evident the time has arrived when serious international complications may be averted only by definite location of the boundary between Alaska and British Columbia.

Back About Heart Disease.

Formerly, when the physician, with his stethoscope, detected a certain abnormal sound called cardiac murmur, indicating heart trouble, he had nothing about it to the patient, or if he did reveal his discovery he did so in such a way as to take away nature's most powerful restorative—hope. But a change in the methods of physicians has been taking place in recent years. Says The Medical Record:

"The opinion is now rooted in the minds of the advanced guard of the profession that cardiac murmurs are often devoid of the grave significance formerly attributed to them. So, too, we have come to learn that considerable damage to the valves may be so thoroughly compensated by hypertrophy (enlargement) that it seems permissible to speak of recovery from organic disease of the heart."

True, the anatomical lesion persists. But the individual thus affected may live for years, without impairment of his health, and with a working capacity in no way reduced from his normal standard. The time has come when the prognosis of despair must make way for the modern doctrine of hope in the possibility of a cure. What was formerly equated to a sentence of death may be commuted to carefulness for life."

Rheumatic fever or some other disease may have caused inflammation of the lining membrane of the heart, and thus laid a foundation for permanent obstruction to the flow of the blood through one or more of the valves. But nature has overcome this obstruction not by removing it, but by enlarging the heart and increasing its force.

True, there may be at length a weakening of the walls of the heart, and a consequent lessening of its ability to do its work, and there may come on palpitation, difficult breathing, cough and signs of dropsy; but this failure may be due to preventable causes.—Youth's Companion.

The Bradstreet Mercantile Agency.

reports fifth failures in the Pacific Coast States and Territories for the week ended Sept. 7, as compared with twenty-two for the previous week and seven for the corresponding week of 1887.

The failures for the past week are divided among the trades of the following: Two butchers, two grocers, one restaurant, one cracker manufactory, one general merchandise, one plumber, one safe and lock-maker, one brewer, one notions, one stone paving and one saloon.

A Party of Chicago Capitalists.

contemplate the erection of a large brick hotel in Mesa City in the coming winter. The enterprise would no doubt prove a profitable one, as no section of the valley is making more progressive strides than Mesa, and the erection of a first class hotel at that place would make it the most popular resort in the territory.—Tampae News.

Messrs. J. P. Gabriel and J. G. Marx.

of Los Angeles, left yesterday morning to make an examination of some mining properties adjacent to Phoenix. They expect to be absent for several days.

What is Florida's death should be.

Arizona's birth. The great army of wintering tourists is now frightened from the orange groves of Florida by the cyclone of death that is devastating her towns and turning back in dismay the great hordes of health and pleasure seekers to lands less afflicted than her own. The tourists are frightened by the yellow fever of the south, and one of the other matters not which, will claim its victims by the thousands unless they avoid both and seek the more congenial clime of the Pacific coast. Here then is Arizona's opportunity. Let her people make known the beauties and advantages of the land they enjoy. Let health seekers be urged to come and if once here they will come again, if accommodations can be given them. Not even Florida's enchanting smiles will ever again succeed in inducing them to return within her inhospitable borders, but every autumn they will return to Arizona with the regularity that the swallows come and go. A few hundred dollars well expended would turn attention westward and each succeeding year the number of health seekers would be more than doubled. Will the venture be made?—Citizen.

The White Metal.

In the July number of the Bullion, a correspondent predicted the present rise in silver upon the following theory: "The failure of crops in India this year, which is made imminent by the almost total failure of the summer rains in that country, makes the present a most opportune time for our government to take hold of the silver question, as, with the balance of trade against them, the merchants of India will again, as heretofore, complain bitterly of the depreciation by English bankers of a standard of value which has been fixed and forced upon them by the mother country. Then too, if England is compelled to buy American wheat on a gold basis, this will tend to remove the incentive to depreciate silver that would exist were England paying for her breadstuffs in silver rupees. Therefore the present time would seem opportune for a movement by the friends of silver with a view to a restoration of the white metal to its legitimate position as a standard of values."

The Buckhorn mine in the Superstition mountains is developing into a most valuable property. A shaft has been sunk to a depth of seventy-five feet and shows a four foot vein of ore bearing gold, silver and copper which will average $700 to the ton. A cross-cut is now being run. The owners of the mine will erect a mill as soon as the property is thoroughly prospected, the work of which is in the hands of experienced miners, who are confident that the Buckhorn will prove a bonanza. A number of other good claims are being worked in the same district and there is no doubt but that in the near future they will add greatly to the output of precious metals from Maricopa county.—Tempe News.

A Wise Patron of The L. S. Lottery.

A worthy Chicagoan is Peter Klein, doing business at No. 99 E. Kinsey St. He is a benevolent frank and social friend—like all old-time "fatherlanders"—he will invest a spare dollar in a lottery and on a former occasion secured an $8,000 prize in the Louisiana State Lottery. Of his present good luck, he was the possessor of a fractional ticket No. 3,894 which drew $300,000 in the drawing, Aug. 7th; he collected the amount, $15,000, through the Express company. His present business place is a wooden-frame building for vending refreshments, cigars, etc. He will erect, on the lot which he owns, a modern brick block.—Chicago (Ills.) Occident, Aug. 24.

There is more and better government land available in Arizona than is left open for settlement in any other part of the west, while the lands, with water rights, can be secured here at one-tenth of the price asked in California. Arizona is a new country and therefore there is likely to be a greater increase of values in real estate than in older communities. Our agricultural resources are backed up by rich mineral deposits and unequalled grazing lands. The immigrant from the east should inquire into these facts before casting his lot in a country where the opportunities may be as few as in his former home.—Flagstaff Champion.

A Billiard Romance.

[New York Correspondent.]

The marriage of Miss Marie McEwen and George Cosine in Brooklyn was the sequel of a romantic episode of the blizzard last March. On the evening of the famous Monday Mr. Cosine found Miss McEwen moaning in a snowbank near the Brooklyn City Hall. Her feet and face were badly frost-bitten, and she was almost speechless. He restored her at a drug store to which he carried her, and drove her home in a sleigh. The sleighride was followed by a series of calls, more sleigh rides and the inevitable result.

The Coming Railroad.

[San Diego Union.]

The Union is in receipt of information from the Panhandle stating that the Santa Fe line will be extended from that point in the direction of San Diego. Such a line would open up in Texas and eastern New Mexico a cattle country that is unsurpassed in the United States, and would place the same in closer communication with San Diego than the great stock-raising districts of Kansas and Nebraska are.

The Proposed Line.

would pass down Salt River Valley, Arizona, giving San Diego direct communication with Phoenix, one of the most promising cities of Arizona. The people of Phoenix have for months been advocating the advisability of such a road, and the Santa Fe company, it appears, will be the organization to build it.

The Building of the proposed line from the Panhandle via Phoenix to San Diego is more than a possibility, and San Diego people should lose no opportunity to urge its construction.

The proposed line would not only open up a much richer country than that through which the Atlantic & Pacific route first bridge so long ago, but it would also avoid the heavy grades existing upon the present route.

Friday evening, during the rain, two negroes met in the road about a mile from town, and, as they had been quarreling with one another thought they would settle their differences there. A large tree stood close by, and one of the negroes pulled off his coat and went to the tree to lay it down. Just then lightning struck the tree, ran down it, and knocked the negro down. The other one thinking that he was killed started off, but the negro jumped up and yelled: "Yer took advantage and bilked me wid a rock. Yer hit me wid yer own coat now." "Yer see now?" The other darky only pointed his finger at the tree, saying: "Ize got enough of you. If lightning can't hurt your old head I can't. I didn't hit yer. See dat?" The negro looked at the tree, and then looked for his coat, but it had entirely disappeared, and he had never found it. Now he'll walk two miles before he'll pass that tree.—Americus, Ga., Recorder.

A Railroad Woman.

[S. F. Chronicle.]

Mrs. E. H. G. Dow of Dover, N. H., was elected president of the Dover Horse Railroad in January last, and has actively employed herself since that time with the duties of her position. The road was in debt when she took charge of it, but under her management the old debts have been paid, and now the road has declared a 20-per-cent dividend on the basis of what a syndicate offered for the stock about a year ago. Before Mrs. President Dow took charge of the road stock was being sold as low as $5 and $7 a share, but lately $100 a share has been refused.

This lady has violated all the well-known precedents of railroad management. Instead of wrecking the road and making a private fortune out of the flossam and jetsam, as is usually the case, she has actually given time and labor for the benefit of the stockholders. Women have no idea of business, especially of railroad business. The fact that Mrs. Dow has put the stock of that road up from $5 to $100 in so short a time, is conclusive evidence that she doesn't know the first principles of railroading—that is, as the art is practiced by Jay Gould and the other experts. We actually do not believe that the lady knows what watering stock or declaring fictitious dividends is; and as for bearing the stock and taking it all in a bed-rock price, it is evident that she has not the faintest conception of how it is done.

It is apparent that Mrs. Dow is a dangerous woman. Unless she is checked in her career, the first thing we know she will have revolutionized the railroad business of this country. Unless she is quarantined the infection may spread, and before we can fully realize it, other railroad presidents and directors may be attacked with honesty, and may actually come to believe that stockholders have some rights. And fancy what a state of things that would be.

Mrs. Dow probably means well, but some friend ought to go to her and tell her that hers is not the method in which railroad business is conducted in America. She should have held up to her the example of the great railroads of America, and then she will see that they never carried on their railroads as she has done hers.

Capturing Dukes.

The American woman of the period has found out a new amusement, which, for lack of a better name, might be called "duke chasing;" and it may be proper to remark, in passing, that our countrywomen get there just the same.

When Mrs. Lillian Hammerley bestowed her fair hand and ample fortune on the Duke of Marlborough, she exemplified Sam Slick's favorite aphorism, that "one thing can be done as well as another," and her example appears to have aroused the ambition of other American women to wear the strawberry leaves and to be saluted as "Your Grace."

The latest rumor is that the Duke of Newcastle has surrendered to discretion of Miss Zeraga of New York, and that the lady in question will be added to the rank of the English aristocracy at no very distant day. Miss Zeraga and her mother went to England last June, and the report of the engagement comes from the other side. It is thus far only a rumor, but it seems to be well founded.

Whether Miss Zeraga will have done well or ill remains to be seen. There is undoubtedly a sort of romantic fascination about a title, especially the title of Duchess; but the value of the title depends very much upon the character and disposition of the husband of the Duchess. Women cannot wear their titles all the time, and there must be times when a sensitive, gentle, confiding woman wants something besides the mere honor and distinction of a title. Every true woman demands of her husband's esteem, respect, admiration and affection, and that whether he be a duke or plowboy; and without these her life is a failure, no matter if she be called by the noblest title which the aristocracy of England can boast.—S. F. Chronicle.

Placed His Branding Iron on Him.

[From the El Paso Tribune.]

A minister of the gospel at Silver City last Sunday week delivered a sermon. This was the text: "The end of the world; or the last round-up." No sooner had he announced the subject for his discourse than a cowboy with a slit in his right ear and the brand of Cain upon his forehead, arose from his seat in the rear of the meeting house, pulled a six-shooter at least two inches longer than the one mentioned by Mark Smith in his tale of "A Ball Game in Arizona," and pointing the most destructive end of it at the minister, exclaimed: "Partner, if you don't deed over to Widow Cashman them twin calves you clapped your iron onto last fall, I'll place this 'ere brand on your left side, just below the nipple." And the hero of the "Last Round-Up" signed the deed the very next day.
